Alexandra Byers, Area Work Load Incentives Coordinator

Join us for this program on Social Security Work Incentives and learn how interested job seekers with disabilities can access federal and state work incentives. Social Security Work Incentives make it possible for people with disabilities receiving Social Security to work and still receive benefits.

With Via's assistance and using tools like Social Security's Work Incentives, more and more adults with disabilities are finding and maintaining successful employment in the community. This program will provide education and assistance to adults with disabilities and their families to help them understand how they can gain successful employment and maintain their Medicaid and Medicare benefits.
